

OPPORTUNITIES IN LABORATORY ANIMAL CARE

Massachusetts is a global leader in life sciences, with respect to academic research to better understand diseases such as cancer, AIDS, and diabetes, and to biotechnology to translate that understanding into better treatments. Laboratory animals are important components of life sciences and proper care of those animals is essential to obtaining reliable data while ensuring they are maintained properly. This seminar will provide examples of good lab animal care and describe career opportunities in Massachusetts

STEM SPEAKER SERIES

DATE: Thursday October 23, 2008

TIME: 11:45-1:00pm

LOCATION: Academic Bldg Room 121

Pizza & Drinks Provided

Dr. Steve Niemi, DVM

Director, Center for Comparative Medicine
Massachusetts General Hospital

*Sponsored by Division of Math, Science & Technology
Math & Science Club*